September meeting

I decided to talk about the Journals of Congress, 1776, first printing. It even has a connection to an item of numismatic interest in it! -- John Rieske

This incredible book was printed under trying conditions about the time the British took Philadelphia.

The Show

My dear Green Hat Friends,

Thank you so much for showing up, for working so hard, for helping the dealers, for helping me, and for doing pretty much anything that anyone asked you to do. Your efforts are known throughout the coin show community. The members there were really exhausted by Saturday's clean up and we really needed more help on Thursday and Saturday. If you missed this year's show, please consider coming to help out next year. We really do have a good time.

Patty holds flowers Dave Miholer of Executive Coin gave her before the show.

I am behind in my "after show" activities, but I will try to give you some numbers at our September meeting. Those numbers will not include profit or loss because those figures are very difficult to come by, and I don't want to rush the calculations and make a mistake. Those will be available at the November Board meeting and then at the November CONA meeting.

The Show II

Congratulations to all the Green Hats and others who showed up to make our 2024 show a success. Talking with the dealers on the floor and people walking around there was nary a complaint. All operations went smoothly and almost without problems.

One individual did sell 2 counterfeit coins to a dealer. Previously 2 other dealers informed the person that the coins were counterfeit, but he was able to pass off the coins to another dealer, knowing the coins were counterfeits. Thanks to Gary Moran and his camera, set up near the entrance at the registration table, a photo was captured of that person entering the bourse. A report was taken by Dublin Police and there will be a follow up.

The Evan Brill Library sale and auction was a popular draw for dealers and collectors. Almost half of the books were sold. The remaining books will be offered in the newsletter and on our web page. A list of the remaining books is posted, and questions can be answered by Tony and myself, by email, at the club meeting, or through a phone call. All proceeds are for Nancy.

As always, the hospitality room was a popular stop for members and dealers. This year Lexa brought in her Keurig coffee maker, and it worked very well. The donuts from Honey Dip Donuts were a favorite again the year. Plans for next year will include several Keurig makers and a wide variety of coffee and whatever else is available. Other considerations will be easier access and posted hours for the room.

In addition to the pizza and other food provided by the hotel, Patty shared a large cake to celebrate our 25th show. Steve, Lexa and I carried some cake to the dealers behind their tables. Like the last piece of pizza, there was one piece of cake left. It was there only for a short time and was claimed by someone.

John from LSCC set up and displayed a wide and interesting variety of coins and others. My favorite was the melted stack of coins from the mint caused by the fire during the 1906 earthquake. Is in a one-of-a-kind piece and really cool to hold in my hand. Most of the coins are visible and identifiable, but all in a lump.

That wraps it up for the 2024 show. Plans now start for 2025.

Evan's books

Many books are still available. If you have an interest in them, please contact Tony or myself. Books will be delivered at our meeting and at shows.

These lists will be published and updated monthly on the web page - conacoinclub.com. They will also be made available to dealers and the general public, so don't let a bargain slip by. - Dan Carroll

From the past

Dispatch - Jan. 24, 1884

NEWARK, O., Jan. 24. - Yesterday afternoon, after the prisoners had been arraigned and entered their pleas of not guilty to the indictments against them and the result had been telegraphed Tuesday, three of them, after debating the matter over in their minds, concluded to enter pleas of guilty to the charges against them, and thus possibly secure lighter sentences. Thereupon James Davis, for passing counterfeit coin, Charles Peters, for petty larceny and John Jennings for forgery, pleaded guilty. All three then received sentences from the court. Davis and Jennings each received two years in the Penitentiary at hard labor, and Peters was sentenced to three months in the County Jail. The others indicted and pleading not guilty will be brought up for trial next week.
